Deans Highlights

Below you will find 10 more relatively simple ways your family can serve together this holiday season. Many of these activities require little to no money. Try one, two, or even all of them (if you're really ambitious).

- Volunteer to read a Christmas book aloud to your child's class ... or contact your local bookstore to see if you can schedule a time to read aloud to their children's section. Host a Christmas dinner for the widows and widowers at your church.
- Host a packing party for Operation Christmas Child, a ministry through Samaritan's Purse that sends a shoebox of gifts/personal items to a child in a Third World country for Christmas—which is often the only gift the child will receive.
- Take balloons or small gifts to the children's ward of your local hospital. You probably won't be able to deliver them to the children themselves due to privacy policies, but you can ask the nurses to deliver them or ask permission of the parents who happen to be present at the time.
- Choose a day to serve each other inside your own home. Take out the trash for your husband, encourage your children to pick up their sibling's toys, and show appreciation for one another.
- Encourage every member of your family to look each person they come across that day in the eye, smile, and express their appreciation with a simple "thank you" or a compliment.
- Go to the grocery store together as a family and pick up a few items for your local food pantry. Many stores have drop-off locations within the store itself during the Thanksgiving/Christmas seasons.
- Volunteer to babysit, as a family, for a couple with small children so that they can go out on a date.
- Clean out your coat closet and take your old coats to a local shelter.
- Set the timer for 10 minutes. Have each person in your house go through their books and choose a few to donate to your local library (or elsewhere).

Happy Holidays!
